

Scheme of the crime scene

Clues

N° 1) Door

The door has been smashed open by the mechanic and the priest before finding the body. On the walls, there aren't any windows or openings of any sort to squeeze through. There is a small space between the door and the floor, making it possible to slide a thin object beneath it.

N° 2) Window

It's the only window present in the room. It was closed with a shutter. The room is 50 meters above ground, jumping down would most likely be fatal.

N° 3) Shutter mechanism

When the body was found, the shutter was closed and locked. Unfortunately, it's defective, if you try to open it, it falls back down due to gravity. The only way to make it stay open is to put something between it and the windowsill, so it cannot fall back. When the shutter reaches the lowest point and it closes, it locks automatically. If you want to unlock it, you have to press the button in the lower part (visible in the drawing).

N° 4) Nails

Under the window there are two nails that are weirdly bent upwards.

N° 5) Water under the window

The night of the murder and the following morning it rained a lot. The floor under the window was found wet.

N° 6) Burnt remains of a strange rope

They were found in the church incinerator during the investigation. Only the mechanic and the clergy members had access to it.

N° 7) Key

The key to the bell room was found lying next to the corpse, near the window. The mechanic had the only existing copy, but he couldn't find it after the murder occurred.

N° 8) Corpse

He died by bleeding, caused by stab wounds all over his body, but mainly concentrated on his back. Everyone declared that they didn't know the victim, and no one has an alibi for the night of the murder.

N° 9) External wall

It is very smooth, making it impossible to climb up or down. The rain only made things more difficult.

N° 10) Ground beneath the window

Nothing of interest was found here.

Testimonies

N° 1) Mechanic (182 cm – 78 kg)

“You know how things went down, I lost the key and we had to kick the door open. I absolutely didn’t expect to find what we found, I’m shocked! But most importantly, the key I lost was lying next to the corpse! How is it possible? I know I’m the main suspect for this crime, but I swear, I didn’t do anything!”

N° 2) Nun (161 cm – 50 kg)

“Me? I’m innocent! This is blasphemy! Stop prying into the clergy’s business, or I will kill you all in the name of God! You should put that useless mechanic in jail, it’s so clear he is the culprit, since he had the key! Oh, that’s incredible, accusing me? Unbelievable. Simply unbelievable. God is judging, you will all go to hell! Last week I broke my arm, and now... This. I hate you! I wish you all die!”

N° 3) Prete (165 cm – 55 kg)

“This morning the mechanic asked for help to kick the door, since he lost the key... Putting up a farce like that to hide his crime. Oh, good Lord, please forgive him... To be honest, he was a terrible mechanic, he spent his time trembling and crying because of vertigo. Maybe fixing the bells wasn’t a suitable job for someone who is scared of heights. However, he was the only one who could do it in Bologna, so I paid him really well.”

N° 4) Worshipper (157 cm – 48 kg)

“I really don’t know what to tell you: that morning I was praying at the church as usual. I didn’t know the man who was killed, the only thing I know for sure is that he didn’t come to the church. I think he was an atheist or something? Yeah, I mean those filthy infidels who only deserve to burn in hell”

N° 5) Monaco (192 cm – 145 kg)

“I’m here to study and broaden my horizons. I want to understand the way of thinking of you westerners. I’m not involved in the murder. The priest has been hosting me for some months, and I in exchange help keeping the church clean. I’m not good with levers and pulleys, that’s why the mechanic took care of the bells and not me. He also took care of that man, if you understand what I’m saying...”
